Protection of Resources in spite Economic Growth

Economic Growth should protect the natural resources and at the same time be of use for social progress. This applies for today's and forthcoming generations.

It is our responsibility to involve all our colleagues and partners into environmental protection.

All of us can contribute to a responsible handling of limited resources.

For our daily business, we have expressed the following and take these as our environmental guidelines:

- We make our managerial decisions according to environmentally relevant aspects.
- Our colleagues are aware of their responsibility as a logistics provider, to structure their processes environmentally responsible in the daily business.
- We go for a responsible treatment of limited resources.
- What is self-evident for us: Environmental Compliance.
- The support of environmentally responsible behavior in our daily business and in the communication with our clients and partners is one of our priorities.

The movement into our new office in 2009 also was a measure of our environmental management system. Despite more than twice as many offices, the energy costs and the CO₂ emissions could be held on the level of the previous years or could even be reduced. On having used an ideal building damping as well as using intelligent heating, cooling and light controlling systems, we have achieved a considerable reduction of global warming gases emission per sqm/head.

During the operational daily business, we keep going for using environmentally friendly logistics – like split transport on rail and sea, and on conservation-conscious subcontractors for road transport.
